The Markets

The rise in wheat naturally is causing a corresponding rise in flour, which was priced today at an advance of 20 cents a barrel over Thursday's quotations. Wheat shows no advance for the day, but sellers held out for a three cent advance. The feature of the day's trading was the sharp advance in oats which jumped $1.25 a ton to $25.50. Two lots of 100 tons each were sold at this price. The strength of oats was due entirely to the strong foreign demand. Barley was in sympathy with oats but there was little trading. Demand for domestic wool is so keen at Boston that buyers are asking for parties other than to conditions or terms of sale, grabbing all in sight as soon as offered. Reports from Baker county are to the effect that farmers are holding their wheat, now worth locally about 90 cents, for the price to reach the dollar mark.

Butter is down half a cent, to 34 1/2, and butter fat is a cent lower, or at a 33 cent price. Eggs are steady at 37 1/2 cents and poultry unchanged. Veal and pork were weak owing to good supply. Hop buying has slowed down somewhat but prices are steady, principally because they cannot get any lower. Most of the sales were at 10 cents, but one sale at 11 1/2 cents is reported at St. Paul. An intensely instructive telegram from New York conveys the startling information that "hops are easy." Potatoes and onions are quoted at 90 cents to $1 a sack. In Chicago wheat showed off a trifle and oats were down about half a cent. Cash wheat was from $1.13 1/2 to $1.15 1/2. Chicago wheat prices were for firsts 23 to 24 cents, as against 27 1/2 in Portland and 48 in Seattle.

CHANGE IN TIME ON OREGON ELECTRIC

Owing to the falling off in passenger traffic on the Oregon Electric, the schedule has been rearranged and the changes will take effect Sunday, October 25. A few trains have been discontinued but two new ones have been added and the limited trains will carry local traffic between certain points to take the place of local trains discontinued.

Of the southbound trains the following changes have been noted: Train No. 1, which formerly arrived in this city at 8:33, will arrive at 8:55 and will leave at 9:05 a. m.; Train No. 3, or the 9:57 train, will be discontinued; Train No. 9, the regular 4:33 train, will not have Woodburn connections; No. 63 is a new train and will leave Woodburn at 2:19 and arrive here at 3:05 p. m., carrying local traffic. No. 11, at 6:05, has been discontinued. No. 13, the limited, makes local stops from Tualatin to Albany, arriving at Salem at 6:40. No. 17, at 8:15, terminates its schedule at Salem now instead of Albany as in the past.

Of the northbound trains, No. 6 leaves at 7:15 p. m. instead of 6:30 as formerly. No. 8, at 8 a. m., is discontinued. No. 10, the limited at 9:45, makes local stops from Gray to Salem. No. 16, the regular 4 p. m. train, will have connections to but not from Woodburn. No. 18, at 4:15 p. m., is discontinued and No. 20 leaves Salem at 5:40 instead of at 5:50.

COMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR

Look Young! Common Garden Sage and Sulphur Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it does not so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

PUBLIC LIKES IDEA OF LADY EMBALMER

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE BEST FITS HER FOR NECESSARY AND FINAL MINISTRATIONS TO LOVED ONES.

The idea of lady embalmers is rather new to some people but the public is being educated to it quickly. In every large city the leading undertaking establishments have found it necessary to meet the public demand in that respect. With the advancement in the present era of the undertaking business it is natural and expected. "What could be more appropriate," asks an Eastern authority, "than the gentle touch and sympathy of a woman in the chamber of death?"

"It has been said embalming is in the same class as trained nursing. To me it is so," said Mrs. Norma N. Lettingwell, of The Cottage Undertaking Parlor. "Would you have a male nurse in the hospital, or in your home, to be at the bedside of your wife, mother or little girl? No; that place is filled by a woman, whose touch and treatment are as gentle as her nature. Then why not a lady embalmer when that spirit has flown? Have love, chivalry and protection been forgotten just because life has left that body? You say it is only a dead body—a piece of clay—but remember that God gave that body life, and it should be cared for as tenderly in death as it was in life. It is so comforting, people have told me, to know that the bodies of their loved ones, wife, mother or daughter, are being embalmed by a gentle and sympathetic woman."

"When I go about my work it is just like the artist—a real one—goes about the painting of his picture. I want to make the body look as natural as possible, giving it those little touches that every woman loved in life. Who can arrange the hair and dress the body like the lady embalmer? A man does his work mechanically, not artistically."

"Not only is the lady embalmer for sentiment, but she does the work like the lady doctor and has her own system of neatness and thoroughness." Mrs. Lettingwell is a skilled embalmer and has had much experience in her profession before coming to Salem to take the position of lady assistant at The Cottage Undertaking Parlor.

OFFICIALLY DEAD NOW.

London, Oct. 23.—The death in action on the Franco-German frontier of Prince Max of Hesse, the Kaiser's nephew, was mentioned today for the first time by the British official war information bureau.

The prince was said to have fallen in the fighting in the Mont Des Cars region and to have been buried in the monastery grounds with three British officers slain in the same battle.

At all events, this war has not reached the I regret to state that was so painfully evident throughout almost the entire course of the war.

at Neuport, where they literally fought with their backs to the wall. They were outnumbered and their artillery was inferior to the Kaiser's, but they repulsed assault after assault until the arrival of the British monitors, which, supporting them from the North sea and the Belgian canals, enabled them to win the day.

British naval officers who saw the fighting declared it seemed almost unbelievable for the Belgian forces to have held their positions against such ferocious attacks.

German prisoners said today that the Kaiser's general staff intended originally to take Dunkirk October 16 and that only the fragment of King Albert's army which still remained in the field saved the city from capture. The allies admit that the Belgians saved the situation. Experts said it was now considered that the previously threatened city was safe.

Where Fight Is Hottest.

The Belgian king passes along his line sometimes in his automobile and sometimes on foot. In addressing his soldiers he uses the familiar "thoe" and "thou," comforting and cheering the men.

In the fighting Thursday he was where the fire was hottest, refusing all his staff's pleas to leave the trenches. One shell burst but ten paces away from him. Realizing his danger, the Belgians fought ferociously, pouring a terrific rifle fire among the Germans and then charging with the bayonet. German losses were enormous.

Belgian and British officers declared today that if the allies win decisively in the pending fight in the north, Albert will be able to return to Brussels.

Shows Sadness But No Fear.

After the Germans had been repulsed Thursday he arrived at headquarters wet to the skin, his hands and face grimy and his uniform covered with mud. The troops cheered him wildly.

In appearance he presented a remarkable contrast to the same man when I

COAST FLOUR MILLS SWAMPED BY ORDERS

Portland, Or., Oct. 23.—On account of the enormous demand for flour by the warring European nations, prices advanced 20 cents a barrel today with indications of further rises in the immediate future. Sufficient orders for flour are said to have been received at this time to keep the mills of the Pacific northwest in operation day and night.

At least four cargoes of flour have been confirmed for England and German account divided equally between them. Japan has also entered the competition for supplies and while the business offered from there is not yet heavy, it is showing a very liberal increase. Advances from the orient indicate that heavy buying will be started early in the coming week.

Millers are securing the entire Pacific northwest for wheat. Prices are very excited on this account and in the interior producers are able to command almost their own figure.

Further sales of oats are reported to secret agents of Germany and England, and this has caused a general advance in the bid price at interior points.

last saw him in Paris, just before he became king. At that time his face was boyish and smiling. Today it is the saddest I ever saw. There is no fear in it, however.

Aviators reported today that the Germans were preparing new entrenchments along the Liege-Namur lines, extending as far northward as Antwerp. They were of the opinion that the Teutonic troops were making ready to go into winter quarters.
